In Closed Cars A Big Surprise

Dealers Plan on a Boom Market as Attendance and Sales Increase at Grand Central Palace

To-day Is Society Day

Exhibition To-morrow

The automobile dealers who are ex-Palace, which ends to morrow night, expressed themselves as agreeably surprised at the interest taken in the exhibition by the public, as evidenced by the high average of attendance and by the high average of attendance and the said he'd like to.

As a reporter for the Change of th

Atter several visits to the show on successive days, Jack Pickford and his wife, Marilynn, finally decided on a car to their taste and bought one of the highest priced cars in the exhibition. Among others reported as purchasers during the show are Nicholas F. Brady, Bird S. Coler, William Randolph Hearst, Fred A. Muschenheim, James Speyer and Lindley M. Garrison. This apparent desire of the public to attach its signature to a sales contract without much hesitattion is considered by the automobile merchants an excellent sign, and they are, of course, hoping that the Lever is contagious.

The merchants also are proud of the attendance, and though no official figures have yet been issued, it is known to be much greater than last year. The dealers are becoming almost boastful about it, and declare that even the national exhibition will have to step lively in order to surpass their showing.

Yesterday was designated as Safety Day by the show committee, and many features were incorporated in its observance. Several exhibitors of safety devices were present and gave demonstrations. The greater part of the program was under the auspices of the Safety Institute of America, which is directed by L. V. Coleman. In the evening the show committee held a reception for that organization, and presented to it an indorsement of the nation-wide safety movement, in the name of the Automobile Merchants' Association.

To-day, through virtue of being Fri-

"Expresses Vitality of Age; Will Influence Art"

Purest classicism in music was in-troduced to purest "jazzicism" along had the music of the minuet, stately, courteous and sentimental. It was ex-pressive of the people of the time. "And I like jazz better. Being unser timental, there are to me more poetic qualities in jazz than in the waltz." Influence Goes Abroad

Jazz not only will be an important factor in the best American composition of the future, but already it is influencing the best composition abroad, Mr. Reiner continued. As proof of this, he pointed out that syncopation has been used in the work of Stravinsky the Russian whom he regards as
